A painful accident occurred last Saturday evening amongst the crowd which assembled on the premises of H. M. the Queen Dowager. The pres was very great and some movement of the general August Frederic Hopke, Esq., a citizen of the United body of onlookers caused a mother to let her little child, a girl, fall amongst the feet of the crowd where she was trampled upon and seriously hurt-It was at the time believed that the child was killed. but we are glad to say that the injuries it received have not proved fatal. The sufferer was removed into Queen Emma's bouse and carefully attended to and is now slowly recovering.

We are glad to learn that the long expected statue of KAMEHAMEHA I. has been shipped for Honolulu by the barque G. F. Haendel- This vessel, commanded by Captain Schook, was to sail from Bremer on August 21st and may be considered as due here about 15th December. The enormous case containing this statue is nine and one-half tons by cubic measurement. It is a matter for congratulation that this long looked for statue, in which both natives and foreigners among our population have taken so much interest, will probably be here, so as to take its place amongst the few ornaments our city boasts, by the begining of next year:

Speaking of Thomas Square as a suggested site for the Statute of Kamehameha I, we are led to recall to the minds of the authorities the fact that the sum of $2,500 was appropriated by the Legislature for the improvement of this public reserve. Whether the Statute be placed there or not, we hope that the Hon. A. S. Clogborn, who shown so much taste in the improvement of other grounds, will be invited by the Minister of the Interior to direct the work of beautifying this Square. We trust also that the work will not be long depublic gardens, has no park at all, being in this respect behind innumerable places which have no pretention to the position of capital cities. What little she has available in this line should be made the most of as soon as possible.

Mr. Lishman has received instructions from the Monument Committee to construct the pedestal ture is to be ten feet in beight; the statue itself is nine and a half feet high. The noble bronze by which the form and features of the latest hero of the Hawaiian Race are to be perpetuated, has already been described in the columns of the ADVERTISER and we rejoice that so fine a work of art commercerating the founder of the Hawaiian menarchy is to find its fitting place in the Capital which he created. The Monument Committee have not yet decided upon a site for the statue. The Legislature by a resolution passed last session expressed the desire of majority of its members that it should be placed in front of the Aliiolani Hale. Others have suggested front of the Aliiolani Hale. Others have suggested the triangular Kanea lot at the junction of King and Merchant streets but we understand that this highly suitable site is not obtainable except at an exorbitant price. Others again have indicated Thomas Square as an available site. We hope that the Monument Committee will not be led by the opinions of anyone to leave out of sight their primary duty in regard to the statue viz. to find a site for it which will do justice, at the same time to the exquisite work of the artist and to its importance as a National Monument. all the rime and pay their de

WE PUBLISH a statement from the Cleveland Leader respecting the visit of Mr. Moreno to General James A. Garfield-a circumstance which has a bearing upon recent political events West Mentor, the home of the distinguished Presidential candidate, is in the vicinity of Cleve land, and therefore we presume that the above journal must have a local knowledge which would enable it to verify or disavow any state ments made in respect to interviews or inte course at the residence of the distinguishe American statesman. We do not publish the statement out of any personal regard for Mr Moreno, but there is a principle involved affecting public interests which warrants the publication not only of the newspaper article referred to, but of other corroborative evidence derived from our correspondence.

From the correspondence of Hon. R. V Wilcox and the other Hawaiian youths, wh accompanied Mr. Moreno, to be placed in literary institute abroad, and from other sources of information, we learn that Mr. Moreno dined by invitation, with General James A. Garfield the Presidential candidate, at his residence a West Mentor, Ohio, on the 18th day of September last, in company with Mrs. Garfield, also the General's aged mother, Major Swaine, Mrs Swaine, Mrs. Oliver L. Judd, and Messrs. Rose and Brown, the General's two private secretaries The conversation on this occasion turned chiefly on our island affaire, when our recent Ministeria crisis were fully discussed by the eminen American Senator; and thus all the circum stances of this occasion indicated a degree of make the circuit of the island. After enjoying a cordial intimacy between General James A. Garstay at Waislus, Kancohe and other points, H. R. | field and Mr. Moreno. The contrary of this has been maintained, and the disavowal affected recent events, and we publish the above state ment and particulars so that the merit of this whole matter, and the position of Moreno may be fully tested.

Among the evidences to be brought forward in support of Mr. Moreno's friendly acquaintance, if not intimacy, with General Garfield, is a letter from this gentleman to the former, which | tiff of his purchase of the life interest of anothe we subjoin. The following particulars belong to the history of this letter. It was received by dence that this party was still alive was forthbridges, cutwaters and roads as needing repairs. When his position as Minister was opposed, chiefly or the charge of inveracity, for having claimed an acquaintance with General Garfield, which was denied, he forwarded this letter, enclosed in one of explanations to General Garfield-who subsequently returned the letter to Moreno with assurances of its genuineness. And it comes to our hands, arriving per last mail steamer from Ohio, with evidences of authenticity, both in rerespect to its authorship, and the circumstances tending its transmission between the corresndents indicated.

A VISITOR AT MENTOR, OHIO .- Among the visitors at the residence of General Garaeld at West Mentor yesterday was Signor Celso Cæsar Moreno, the projector of the trans-Pacific cable who has just arrived from the Sandwich Islands General Garfield received Mr. Moreno very cordially, recognizing him as an old acquaintance, and expressed himself as very glad to see him at his residence. The conversation lasted for several hours before and after dinner upon various subjects, especially about the Sandwich Islands and their Sovereign King Kalakaua. General Garfield, the Signor said to a Leader reporter, proved himself to be very well posted upon that far away country which is destined to be an important factor in the commercial and political revolution which the opening of the Panama Canal and the trans-Pacific cable will bring out. Signor Moreno was made the bearer of a cabinet of General Garfield to His Majesty King Kalakans on his return to the Sandwich islands where he goes again to secure the final action of that government toward the consummation of his vast project. The Signor expressed himself as delighted with the natural beauties of Cleveland and made special complimentary mention of her ladies. He is puzzled to understand what there is in the climate and soil of Ohio that produces so many great men when other larger and richer States have but one or two of National reputation .- Cleveland Leader, September 19, 1880.

We have letters from Hon. W. R. Wilcox and the Hawaiian youths, dated Reno, Sept. 9, and Cincinnati, Sept. 16, in which they speak very joyously of their travel in company with Mr. Moreno. We expect by next mail to hear from them at their point of destination in Europe.

Such is the demand for the WEDNESDAY EX PRESS, OF ELELE POAKOLU, by our native friends that we shall after this issue, publish 8 full pages in Hawaiian, and matter for our foreign readers wil be reserved for a supplement. We are prepared to supply back numbers, and issue an edition of 2000 copies. The history of Kamehameha will be con-tinued conjointly with the story of Lakamana.

Much has been said about the purchase by Minister Bush, as President of the Board of Health, for the statue of King Kamenamena I. This struc- of 1000 sheep for $2000. This is less than the price charged by many ranches. The Waimes ranch, of Hawaii, and the Molokai ranch of H. H. R. Keeliko lani will not sell for less than $2.50 a head delivered at the ranch. Minister Bush made application to these ranches before he purchased. And as for the assertion that Hawalians will not eat mutton, it i an untruth, as any one knows who is acquainted with the large sales of sheep and goats to natives at Lahaina and elsewhere. It is also an untruth to say that the mutton will cost 8 cents per pound, and beef only 4 cents. Sheep that weigh 50 pounds net will be 4 cents per pound,—and as the skin can be sold for 25 cents each, the price of the mutton will

FRANCE.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

The journey to Chesbourg made by M. Grevy must be regarded as the complement of the presidential ceremony of the distribution of the flags to the army on the 14th July. The Boys in Blue must also have their cakes and ale. The Portsmouth of France is very republican, so the three presidents naturally found themselves at home. It is not often that the Navy is honored as it has just been, as the pet service is the army. M. Grevy conducted himself as a Spartan, in point of simplicity, and M. Gambetta recommen ded the crowd to cheer, not himself, but the President of the Republic-the incarnation of public virtue, national rights and inflexible legality. Only one incident took place, when the Bishop of Bageux headed a deputation of his clergy, to pay their respects to the President when the latter in reply to the congratulatory address, asserted, " love for the Church, was not incompatible with love for France." The artistes of the theatres have only just happily concluded their campaign-to be eligible for the decoration of the Legion of Honor, when they enter upon another-all men being equal since the revolution. They complain of the disrespect in being called Faure, Got, Capoul, Sarah Bern hardt or Patti, quite short. They demand from politeness the prefix Monsieur, Mile. or Madame, this daily decoration is respect. Alexandre Dumas is about putting his Dame aux Camelias in verse, to suit Verdi's Traviata, which is founded on that novel. But the author of the librette prohibits Dumas from carrying out his intention Thus the author of a successful novel and drams cannot put it in verse, because it has been pirated in advance. A similar difficulty was encountered by George Sand. One Bourgeois dramatised her Petite Fadette, and without either her permission or a division of the receipts; some years later she decided to dramatise her own novel herself, and was prohibited from doing so by the heirs of Bourgeois.

Dr. Tanner's experiment that in dving of hun ger man can live without cating, has certainly drawn attention to the question, do we eat and drink too much. The anti-tobacconists are in the field with their hobby, and so are the vegetarians; the latter have never had many disciples in eat meat than a fakir, which explains the paleness of their portraits; hygienics and dietary, said Sainte-Beure, were badly studied at Port Royal. The Nephalians bind themselves never to taste intoxicating drinks; they hate wine, as Noah must have done after his celebrated spree; at table they are a nuisance, as they draw attention to those beside them who have a weakness for a glass of pure, generous wine, very annoying when a lady is in the case. Pending the siege of Paris, it was proposed to throw all the barrels of brandy in the city outside the fortifications, so that the Prussians could drink themselves to death. The plan was rejected, as encouraging intemperance. A sceptical member proposed that, in case of falling shells, no Nephalian ought to seek refuge in a wine-cellar, save when it was

The Collegiate institutions have given up their thousands to vacation rambles, and homes are as happy as they can be by the presence of the boys -proud in the case where prizes and good marks form part of the contents of their trunks. France has reason to be satisfied with the results of the scholastic year just closed; and the prospects of the coming one are still more brilliant, for the education of the country is now under the guidance of a Central Council, whose members are practical educationists, and pledged in the fullest exercise of independence to apply every measure calculated to ameliorate the methods of instruction. It is refreshing to attend a distri-

tion of college prizes : it recalls the happiest days of our lives, and we feel no small pleasure in being thus in contact with youth in all its pride. its joys, and its hopes. Of the several I attended this year, there is one peculiarly deserving to be signalled, not only on account of the valuable character of the instruction given, but of its remarkable success. The Ecole Professionnelle, of Versailles, was founded sixteen years ago by M. Bertrand, its able director, graduate of the University of France, and member of the Academy of Paris. He had for sponsor M., and now Senator, Laboulave. The aim was to supply the department of the Seine and Oise with a professional school, such as exists in Paris and the North of France. M. Bertrand opened his establishment with but one pupil, and he has now an average of 500. The distribution of the prises took place in the Public Concert Hall, capable of accommodating 1000 persons, and yet it was too small for the crowd that altended. Ranged in front of the estrade were the students, in uniform or plain clothes, either being optional; and each pupil, on being named, ascended to receive his prizes from the Prefect of the department, who was surrounded by the Mayor, Senators, and Deputies, the head Inspectors of National Education, clergymen, and leading notabilities. The Artillery band executed some choice music, and two actors of celebrity recited humorous verses from time to time. In the evening a very splendid banquet was given at the school, at which the leading celebrities of the department assisted From the speeches delivered at the distribution of the prizes, several pupils have won distinguished places in the general competition at the Fine Arts' School, the Agronomical Institute, and other public and technical establishme It will be a happy day for France when ever department shall have its college, after the of the Ecole Professionnelle of Versailles
